A group of enterprising people are launching a makerspace in Decatur – a place and community for inventing, experimenting, tinkering and making.

It's Decatur Makers, set to open late summer 2014. And it will attract people from all over metro Atlanta. It's the area's first all-ages makerspace.

Imagine a wood shop, metal shop, computer lab, electronics shop, arts and crafts area — and more —under one roof ... with tools ranging from soldering irons and drill presses to recycled art and 3D printers ... and a community of experts and novices of all ages learning how to build and fix things.

That's Decatur Makers.

We're in the last mile of our launch fundraising campaign. Will you help us get there? As Decatur Makers works to complete renovation of our makerspace, we're seeking business sponsors to help us reach the final 20 percent of our fundraising goal. Will you help us make the last mile?

DECATUR MAKERS also played a key role in attracting 15,000 visitors to Decatur for this year's Maker Faire Atlanta, held October 4-5. It's almost like having another Beer Festival in our community! Only with sawdust and microchips.
